

Greetings!

If you are in the UK, right now, staying inside out of the heat is the new going out. Our webinars and seminars can help! If you are elsewhere in the world, then I would highly recommend you take a look at our online offerings this month anyway.

English Pre-Census Records

Our team has curated a selection of five fascinating seminars around the theme of English Pre-Census Records.

You can view information about these upcoming seminars by clicking the button below. No registration is necessary and the presentations will be available to view for non-members from 10am (UTC+1) on 25th July until 7th August.

English Pre-Census Records seminars

(These seminars are recordings from the Guild Knowledge Zone, which is a massively useful resource and freely accessible to our members)

Technology Tools: GedSite

The final webinar in our Technology Tools series is on Wednesday 28th July at 7.30pm (UTC+1), and there is still time to sign up to watch live! Register using the button below.

Not only that, but you can get still access to the first two webinar recordings here.

Publishing your genealogy research online is a great way to share your family history or one-name study and make new connections. GedSite is a Windows application that creates HTML pages from GEDCOM files and has many features that allow you to customise your site.

Register for Gedsite Webinar

I do hope you will join us for these events. It's always fun to learn something new!
